UNQUALIFIED OPPOSITION TO REPEAL MOVE VOICED BY CURTIS IN ACCEPTANCE SPEECH

BELGIAN AND AIDE DESCEND SAFELY ON ITALIAN FIELD

Lean Professor and Young Companion Soar Thousands of Feet Beyond Mark Reached in Previous Daring Flight.

SCIENCE TO PROFIT, SAVANT BELIEVES

Bitter Cold Only Discomfort Suffered at Greatest Altitude Ever Reached by Man.

BY R. G. HADFIELD.
CAVALLARO DI MONZANARO, Italy, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Auguste Piccard and Max Cosyns came down to earth this afternoon after having gazed on the world from the greatest altitude ever attained by man—more than 10 miles.

When they landed they were somewhat shaky, very tired, and exceedingly modest. Swarms of persons, including government officials who came by airplane, descended on them, but neither Piccard nor Cosyns was in a mood to accept applause.

Professor Piccard made certain that the balloon which had taken him into the stratosphere was well cared for and that his delicate scientific instruments, which may have recorded evidence to indicate whether the universe is dying or immortal, were safe. Then he telephoned his wife, who until recently had been reluctant about allowing him to repeat the dangers he encountered on his first stratosphere flight last year. After that he revealed little about his amazing experience.

He said that three hours after they took off this morning from Dubendorf, across the Alps in Switzerland, they reached their maximum height. From that vantage point the world was a strange looking place. Landmarks were indistinct and maps were of little value.

Only the large lakes below him served to indicate to Professor Piccard exactly what part of the earth he was over. He recognized Lake Garda, 12 miles northwest of this village, and decided to land. It took him more than two hours to bring down his balloon.

Their altitude was 10,700 meters, or 35,270 feet. On the professor's first flight last year the top height was 51,793 feet.

"We are very well satisfied with our flight," the professor said, "and hundreds of gaping farmers stood about staring at men who had been far above the clouds in the clouds in a little aluminum ball attached to a balloon."

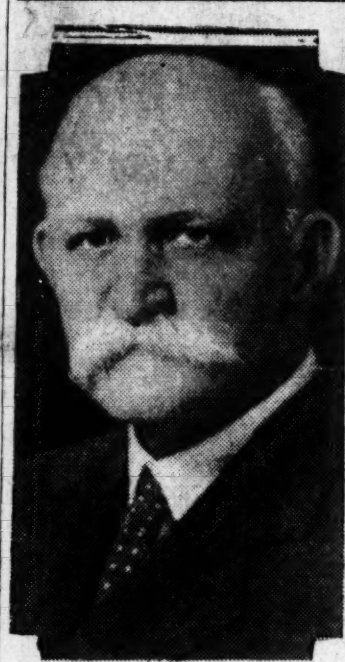

Professor Piccard, 48 years old, lean, his head crowned by a shaggy mass of hair, and his 25-year-old assistant, took off at 3:08 o'clock this morning (11:06 p. m., Wednesday, eastern standard time), at Dubendorf, on the other side of the Alps, in Switzerland. They were in the air about 12 hours.

GEORGIA TOBACCO PRICES ARE HIGHER FOR OPENING DAY

Weed Averages $3 Per Hundred Better Than 1931 as Markets Open at 20 Points in State.

By the Associated Press.

Georgia farmers brought thousands of pounds of bright leaf tobacco to 20 auction markets Thursday and received approximately $3 per hundred pounds more for their offerings than highest bidders gave them on opening day last year.

Increases over last year's prices, however, were for the most part confined to the lower grades and as a result, the price trend was about the same with lower grades slightly above last year's average and the better grades showing only nominal increases.

On the South Carolina markets, where sales have been held daily since Tuesday, the price trend was about the same with lower grades slightly above last year's average and the better grades showing only nominal increases.

At the Tifton market, which last year handled the largest tonnage in Georgia, approximately 300,000 pounds were offered. The price average was $10.47 per hundred pounds, as compared to $6.64 on opening day last year. Buyers estimated lower grades

Saratoga Floated After Going Aground

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander R. E. Division, operations officer at the North Island naval air station, reported at 7:30 p. m. that the U. S. S. Saratoga, giant naval airplane carrier, had been floated off the sand beach where it went aground off Sunset beach this morning (11:06 p. m., Wednesday, eastern standard time), at Dubendorf, on the other side of the Alps, in Switzerland. They were in the air about 12 hours.

CAPTAIN MOLLISON SIGHTED BY LINER 650 MILES AT SEA

Flying Scotsman Well Started on Attempt To Make Round Trip in Tiny Plane.

PORTMARNOCK, Irish Free State, Aug. 18.—(AP)—Captain J. A. Mollison, who left his bride of three weeks today and to off on a projected round-trip flight to New York was sighted this afternoon 650 miles off Ireland and going strong.

His bride, the former Amy Johnson, herself an eminent flyer, watched his ship as it disappeared in the west. "A fine start, anyhow," she said, "I have perfect faith in him and in that little bus. I think he's wonderful."

A few minutes later she got into a plane and sped away to catch up with him and accompany him on the first 100 miles or so of his journey.

Mollison, a 27-year-old Scotsman and veteran of the Royal air force who already has made a bit of aviation history with record Australia-London and London-Cape Town flights, hoped to be back on this side within two and a half days.

The plane on which he is depending to carry him on the first solo crossing of the Atlantic from east to west is a tiny Puss Moth weighing little more than a ton. Mollison has turned his craft into a flying gasoline can.

He made the take-off at 5:25 a. m., eastern standard time. Seventy minutes later he crossed over Galway on the west coast, flying at an altitude of about 200 feet and a speed of approximately 105 miles. The weather was favorable.

At 11 a. m., eastern standard time, the Cunard liner, Acadia, reported sighting him 650 miles at sea.

Mollison flew over here this morning from Baldonnel airfield, Dublin. His wife arrived by automobile.

Weather conditions were perfect. There was a light westerly wind to the middle of the Atlantic, he was informed, and from there a tendency to easterly winds, which would be in his favor. There was little fog.

The flyer had encountered considerable difficulty in obtaining permission to attempt an ocean flight in such a small plane. The British air ministry objected, but he strengthened the wings and argued that he could carry

Judge John J. Hunt Is Critically Ill Here

Stricken with cerebral hemorrhage, Judge John J. Hunt, 85, Georgia commissioner of pensions and former state commander of the United Confederate Veterans, Thursday was critically ill in a local hospital. Judge Hunt was semi-conscious, and fear was expressed for his safety because he had advanced age and the nature of the illness.

Judge Hunt was taken to the hospital August 5, but recovered sufficiently three days ago to sit up and receive friends. The condition returned Thursday morning, and Judge Hunt became worse, according to his physician, Dr. W. W. Blackman.

Judge Hunt, who was born in Marietta in 1847, has been pension commissioner since 1931. His first public office was that of ordinary of Spalding county in 1876. He enlisted in the War Between the States, but was discharged when it was learned that he was a minor. He again enlisted in 1863, but the organization disbanded. Not daunted, he enlisted a third time and served during the remainder of the war.

Under Hansell's figures, the three cities would actually spend only $197,784 for work which would cost them $591,690 under the estimates of Whitman, Requa and Smith, sanitary engineers, who laid out the metropolitan sewer district.

The board of trustees of the medical society unanimously endorsed the resolution warning of the sewer danger, prior to the regular meeting of the society. They were adopted unanimously and without comment.

They cite that the society "has no interest in this matter except the continued health of the people, but recognizes that a real danger exists" and warns that "an epidemic in any section of the area would spread with alarming rapidity and would affect

Ten Miles Up and Back Safely

Professor Auguste Piccard Thursday completed his second successful ascent of the stratosphere when he carried his giant balloon in Italy after a flight which started in Switzerland and carried him 16,700 meters, well over 10 miles, into the earth's outer atmosphere in search of scientific data. The views above are of the professor and his giant balloon with its spherical aluminum gondola.

DOCTORS WARN OF SEWER FEEDS NEAR FINAL DRIVE

Fulton Society Votes To Back Plan for Modernization of System.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Barring a possible run-over in the gubernatorial race, less than four weeks of campaigning remained Wednesday night as senatorial and gubernatorial candidates again charged and countered closely on the heels of a report that the sewer funds, join the system of the metropolitan area.

Action of the society followed introduction of a resolution by Dr. Frank Wells, chairman of the Fulton county board of health. Dr. Dan Y. Sage is president and Dr. Howard Halley secretary of the society.

The association's resolutions followed closely on the heels of a report of William A. Hansell, sewer chief of the Atlanta construction department, that Mayor James L. Key, in which it is pointed out that if East Point, College Park and Hapeville, the only political subdivisions in the affected area which have not joined in the request for the sewer funds, join the move, they will save $394,000 over the cost if they perform their work independently of the sewer district plan.

Hansell's figures, the three cities would actually spend only $197,784 for work which would cost them $591,690 under the estimates of Whitman, Requa and Smith, sanitary engineers, who laid out the metropolitan sewer district.

The board of trustees of the medical society unanimously endorsed the resolution warning of the sewer danger, prior to the regular meeting of the society. They were adopted unanimously and without comment.

Friend and Heir of Slain Recluse Fingerprinted in Murder Probe

NATCHEZ, Miss., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Duncan G. Minor, sole beneficiary under the probated will of Miss Jane Surget Merrill, slain wealthy recluse, and six unnamed negroes were fingerprinted tonight by officers searching for a solution of the mysterious murder.

The fingerprints of Minor and the negroes were impressed after the return from Chicago of Sheriff C. P. Roberts of Adams county, and Maurice B. O'Neil, Bertillon man of New Orleans, who has been assisting Roberts with the case.

The officers made no immediate statement as to why they had decided to take the new prints.

In Chicago they issued a statement saying they were confident that a

WALKER TO CALL CHIEFS OF G. O. P., GETS COURT STAY

Mayor's Counsel Obtains Writ Barring Decision Until Bench Has Passed on Hearing's Legality.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker struck in two directions today in defending himself against ouster charges before Governor Roosevelt.

First he challenged the governor's authority to sit in the matter by obtaining a court order requiring Mr. Roosevelt to defend his right to continue to sit in the case and to pass judgment. Then he was granted his request to call republican leaders of the state as defense witnesses, and subpoenas were issued for Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy and other prominent republicans.

The mayor's associates did not explain why they wished to question the republican chiefs, but they have charged in the past that the New York city investigation, which resulted in the ouster proceedings against Walker, was nothing but a republican "fishing expedition" for campaign ammunition to be used in this year's election battle.

Supreme Court Justice Ellis J. Starke will rule tomorrow on the writ of prohibition asked by the mayor's counsel permanently to tie the governor's hands in the case.

If the hearing is not halted by the court, John J. Curtin, defense counsel, will complete his argument for dismissal of the charges standing against Walker. Then he is expected to call the first of the 22 witnesses whom he subpoenaed tonight.

In addition to Macy, these republicans are also included on the list: Samuel Koenig, New York city republican leader; Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, chairman of the legislative investigating committee that bears his name; Federal Judge John Knickerbocker, western New York district, former republican leader in the state senate; William L. Ward, Westchester county republican leader; Senator Walter W. Westall and Senator Seabury C. Mastick, of Westchester county; and Fred Bradley, former republican leader in the state senate.

Curtin did not indicate why he had asked for subpoenas for the republican leaders.

Friends of Mayor Walker have contended, however, that the entire legislative investigation was a political move started by the republicans to give them ammunition for the 1932 campaign.

BY FREDERICK A. STORM.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(UP)—Mayor James J. Walker, fighting desperately to save the $400,000-a-year job and his political future, appealed to the courts today to stay the hand of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Four Persons Injured As Train Hits Auto

Joe Fain, of Dalton, and Mrs. Bertha Rose, her 17-month-old daughter, Marie Rose, of Dallas and Dalton, were injured Thursday afternoon when the car driven by Mr. Fain was struck by a Seaboard passenger train at the railroad crossing in Dallas, Ga., according to reports. The three were brought to the St. Joseph infirmary where they are being treated. Their condition was not critical.

Burford Rose, husband of Mrs. Rose, jumped from the car in time to escape injury. He tried to carry his baby daughter with him, but was unsuccessful, "he said. Fain also made an effort to jump from the car when the accident was seen to be unavoidable, it was said, but did not get clear before the speeding train crashed into the car. Mrs. Rose and the child were hurled more than 50 feet in the machine, according to Rose.

Increased Wages, Dividends Indicate Improved Business

Following a report by the United Press that Eastern Air Transport showed an increase in passenger traffic during the first seven months of this year, the local branch of the company said that the increase in Atlanta would amount to even more—about 40 per cent.

The travel represented in this report is to Richmond, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. Some of this travel is represented by movements of buyers to the eastern markets getting ready for fall business.

It is too early yet to note any change in Florida tourist travel, but a heavy movement of the eastern winter. Local hotels report more inquiries recently from tourist travel.

U.S. SENATOR DAVIS INDICTED FOR PART IN LODGE LOTTERY

Six Others Named With "Puddler Jim" of Pennsylvania After Investigation of Alleged Crimes

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—United States Senator James J. (Puddler Jim) Davis, of Pennsylvania, and six other persons were named in federal indictments today charging them with participating in lotteries promoted by fraternal organizations to raise charity funds.

The Western Union Telegraph Company also was named in one of the indictments, which charge violation of the lottery and conspiracy laws.

The indictment resulted from an investigation of the alleged sale of lottery tickets by the Eagles, the Moose, Mystic Shrine and other fraternal organizations. Senator Davis is an executive of the Loyal Order of Moose.

United States Attorney George Z. Medley, who directed the investigation, declined "in advance of trial" to comment on reports that some $5,000,000 was involved.

Other defendants named in the true bills were Conrad H. Mann, of Kansas City, Mo., national executive of the Fraternal Order of Eagles; Frank E. Herring, publisher of the Eagles magazine; Bernard C. McGuire, head of a New York merchandise firm bearing his name; Raymond Walsh, an employee of McGuire; Theodore G. Miller, head of the Mooseheart preparation department; and M. J. Reville, in charge of the package delivery department of the Western Union.

Arraignments are scheduled within the next few days.

Penalties involved range up to 34 years imprisonment and $53,000 fine upon conviction.

Federal investigators said approximately 10,000,000 tickets costing 50 cents and $1 had been issued in connection with receptions and dances. The system described in the indictment entailed the drawing of "lucky numbers."

The proceeds were to have been distributed among needy fraternity members, lodge announcements said.

No Shriner Named.

Although one indictment relates to the allegedly advertised distribution of $125,000 in prizes at the Shrine convention in San Francisco last July 28, which was said to have been called off after the investigation began, no Shriner was named in the bill.

This circumstance was attributed to the inability of investigators to connect any Shriner official with a distribution of profits.

ELEPHANT PARADOX ENTERTAINS FARLEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(AP)—James A. Farley, chairman of the democratic national committee and manager of the Roosevelt-Garner campaign, issued the following commentary tonight on the acceptance speech of Vice President Curtis:

"It looks as if the republican party has a half-dry head and a dried out tail."

BY MILO M. THOMPSON.
STATE, CAPITOL, TOPEKA, Kas., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Vice President Charles Curtis stood today on the shaded north steps of the Kansas statehouse, received official notification of his renomination as the republican party's candidate for vice president and told visiting party leaders and his Kansas neighbors:

"I stand upon the party platform. I approve Mr. Hoover's admirable statement of republican principles. . . . I know of no reason for the people criticizing the party under whose policies our nation has become the greatest and most powerful in the world. . . . Personally, I am opposed to the return of the saloon and I am opposed to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment."

A crowd of more than 5,000 gathered beneath aged elms to hear what "Charley" Curtis, of historically dry and agricultural Kansas, would say about prohibition, farm relief, tariffs, the depression and the republican record in bidding for reelection.

Praised by Dickinson.

They heard Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, keynote the republican national convention and chairman of the notification committee, extol the man who had represented Kansas for 35 years in congress.

"I have heard the vice president declare his opposition to repeal of the eighteenth amendment, his faith in tariff protection, his assurance that agriculture will be the first nation to recover from the financial storms and his faith in Herbert Hoover."

The vice president brought cheers, whistling and applause from the citizens of the state of Carrie Nation.

KITCHEN TESTED RECIPES

GETTING READY FOR LABOR DAY PICNICS.

Labor Day picnic is one of the most popular picnic periods for the average American family. The Monday holiday following the usual weekend period makes it possible to undertake quite a distant motor trip, a long-deferred visit or a last fling at a summer vacation. All America is at the cross-roads! Although the many red-hot stands

PET MILK Tall Can Each 5c SALT Two 5cand roadhouses that line the highway do extra good business that week-end, there are many families that pack up their own food for a couple of days and patronize these places only for gas and oil for the car.
Modern conveniences make this possible. Thermos bottles, gallon jugs to hold cold drinks, or even cold or hot food; automobile kits that are the last word in service; even the old-fashioned market basket loaded with good things to eat offer the housewife conveniences never dreamed of in horse-and-buggy days. Mother may pack up the lunch and clear up the kitchen afterwards, and that is the last of her food worries until the family gets back home. She is able to enjoy herself with the rest for the first time in history.Plan Ahead and Save Worry.
All that she has to do is to plan things ahead of time. If there is to be potato salad, there is nothing better in which to pack it and keep it cool than one of those really inexpensive gallon jugs on the market. Even fried chicken in the meat line will keep hot for several hours in another of these, if the jug is first allowed to stand filled with boiling water. The expense of even three of these jugs, which now cost less than a dollar apiece, will be cheap compared with eating on the road if the family group is larger than three. If you intend to have cold salad and cold meat cuts, pack them both in the same jug. Let this jug stand with a little ice in it for 15 minutes before filling it and it will keep the food cold for at least 12 hours.Then a hot drink may be carried in the second jug. Sliced bread may be purchased, left right in the wrapper, and butter may be carried in the small screw-top mayonnaise jars which are usually plentiful around the house. Lettuce, washed and wrapped first in waxed paper, and then in a damp cloth or bag, will keep fresh all day.
Cheese will carry just plain wax-wrapped. Olives and other appetizers should not be opened until ready to eat.

So far as cakes and sweets are concerned, it is better to make a loaf cake or cupcakes, unfrosted. Cans of fruit or of tomato juice are always refreshing. And if anyone of the girls in the family is an expert at fudge-making, this trip is going to be the time the family will appreciate her gift more than at Christmas, even! As the miles are checked off on the speedometer, the craving for something sweet increases, and is easily satisfied with a piece of fudge, whereas if you have to stop and buy it, it costs a nickel apiece anyhow! Sandwiches are not so good to carry as is. It is far better to carry the makings for them, and make them when you stop by the roadside. Mayonnaise, sandwich fillings, pickle relish, butter, rolls or loaves of sliced bread are easy to get and easy to carry. The trunk at the rear of the car is an ideal storage place for all of this food, and it will be out of the way of the feet of the rest of the people in the back seat.

Stopping to Eat.
Along the road are many beautiful garden spots, woods, parks, groves and other delightful parking places, few of which the public uses to best advantage. Usually these are associated with gasoline stations, and table service under the trees is free to all. Here the mother and helpers may spread the food upon the tables and the family may eat in peace and fair comfort. Fires, however, may not be built here.For those who wish to "go primitive," there are roads that lead to beaches or river banks, where fires may be built and wieners roasted to the heart's content. The men of the party will get a great kick out of getting the wood and showing off in their own superior way how a man can make a fire burn!
The mother should encourage this trait, because it saves her a lot of time and worry and back-bending. She should even anticipate it, and throw into the back of the car one of the wire racks or of the grill. This piece of equipment makes a marvelous grill for steaks or bacon or wieners, even makes better coffee! And the men will be all puffed up, because the food will cook so much better it will seem as if it is all due to their fire-making ability!Do Not Take Too Much Food.
The tendency is for the inexperienced person to pack up and take along too much food, in too great a variety. Filling things, such as beans, spaghetti, chili con carne, may be carried in the cans in which they are purchased. Potato salad, meat loaves and other substantial foods may also be carried either in glass jars otherwise used for home-canning, or in the aforesaid mentioned jugs. But fancy foods, mixed together, should be avoided. Fish foods should never be carried, unless the fish is canned, such as salmon, etc. Do not attempt to take such foods as shrimps, tuna fish salad, mixed vegetable salads, and such things. Fried chicken is the best and easiest meat to carry, unless you pack ready-to-serve cold cuts of meat in one of the jugs prepared to hold cold foods. Otherwise, it is better to stick to frankfurts, bacon and persimmons, if other conditions are right, a few steaks. These must be carefully packed, however, or only disappointment will be the result.

A cardinal principle of the open road, which so many travelers seem to entirely forget, is to put out all fires, even the tiniest ones, and to bury or otherwise permanently dispose of all garbage and papers. It is inconceivable, not to mention downright slovenly, for a party to pull away from a camping place and leave it in such a condition that it is only fit for pigs to inhabit! It is absolutely disgusting for any other party that might want to use the same spot again; it breeds flies, mosquitoes and disease. So far as the matter of fires is concerned, we believe it will be up to the mothers of the family or group to attend to the putting out of all live coals. The terrible forest fires that follow upon the holiday-making of America's families is scandalous. Throw sand or dirt over all live coals before leaving the camping spot.

Dixie Crystals Featured At Cooking SchoolGeorgia-Made Sugar Used by Mrs. Stafford.
In The Constitution's cooking school at the Georgia theater this week, Dixie Crystals Sugar, made by the Savannah Sugar Refining Corporation at Savannah, is being used by Mrs. Kate Stafford in the delicious new recipes which she is demonstrating.

Dixie Crystals Sugar was selected by Mrs. Stafford because it is the finest sugar obtainable by Atlanta housewives, being shipped direct to Atlanta from near-by Savannah. Fresh sugar is free from lumps, creams more evenly and better in ices and cake batters, and dissolves more quickly in tea, coffee and other beverages.

Recipe books and samples of Dixie Crystals sugar have been distributed to the thousands in daily attendance upon The Constitution's cooking school by Miss Stein and James Bland, representing the Savannah Sugar Refinery.

The Savannah Sugar Refinery is one of Georgia's largest industries, giving employment to over 800 Georgia men and women. It pays more federal taxes than any other Georgia corporation and more taxes to the state of Georgia than all other sugar refineries combined.

Adolf Hitler Denies Plan For Nazi March on Berlin

"Brown Shirt" Chieftain
Reiterates Claim to 75
Per Cent Representation
in Government.

BY LOUIS P. LOCHNER.

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press.)
BERECHTESGADEN, Bavaria, Germany, Aug. 18.—Adolf Hitler, leader of Germany's 13,700,000 fascist national socialists, declared today he had no intention of marching on Berlin.

"Why should I," he said, "when I am there already? The question isn't whether I'll march on Berlin but rather who will have to march out of Berlin."

High up in the Bavarian mountains, 107 miles from Munich, Hitler is calmly awaiting further political developments in the certainty that no matter what cabinet is established after the reichstag meets August 30, his nazis will have at least 75 per cent representation in the government.

"According to the rules of democracy," he said, "any party or group of parties commanding 51 per cent of the electorate can claim the right of having the entire government turned over to them.

"Our movement at the last elections won 57 per cent. This means that of the 51 per cent necessary for taking over the government we can furnish about 75.

"Let me put it in terms of business: We will supply 75 per cent of the capital to be invested in this business. Whoever furnishes the rest, whether the reich's president or the other parties, can supply the other 25. That obviously means that our 75 per cent has a right and claim to leadership.

"Without us legal government in Germany is no longer possible. We can wait until we are in power. I hold my safe position. I now have 13,700,000 behind me; the next time I'll have 24,000,000 to 25,000,000 and so on.

"At the presidential runoff election, I stood absolutely alone with all others against me and more than 13,000,000 voted for me. That is, my hard-earned capital which nobody can take from me and which I have risked my life to get together.

"If put into the government of which I spoke, it has the further advantage that it will not need majority votes. The 75 per cent can be put to work at the say-so of one man."

"No understanding with France is possible so long as she treats us as she does now. You cannot have reconciliation with a man who, as you lie helpless on the floor, tries to choke you."

It was here that Hitler, with a tired smile and a deprecating gesture, put off any suggestion of a march on Berlin.

"We have strong positions, such as the Prussian diet presidency, already, and will capture others, legally also," he said. "My storm troops are the best disciplined body thinkable and will not attempt an illegal march."

I asked the nazi leader whether his movement's opposition to big business cartels meant that he wanted all large factories and businesses abolished.

"I would not be so silly as to try to eliminate all large concerns," he replied. "You cannot build locomotives in a blacksmith's shop nor ocean liners in row-boat sheds, nor can you make automobiles by hand."

"You must remember this, however, we live almost adjacent to a country where communism is being exclusively preached and an attempt made at practicing it. Also we have millions of unemployed in our country. Now it will not do to have wealth and property concentrated in the hands of a few people or a few concerns and expect to imbue our people with the desirability and ethical value of private property.

Women Fliers Nearing Endurance Hop Mark

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Aug. 18.—(P)—With unfavorable weather forecast for the final day of their attempt to set a new endurance flight record for women, Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden completed their fourth full day in the air this afternoon. Because rain and wind were forecast, with the possibility that refueling might be temporarily impossible, 100 gallons were piped into the endurance plane from the fueling ship this afternoon. This is enough to keep them up until mid-afternoon tomorrow, by which time, barring mishap, they will have established a new record of 123 hours. They were soaring placidly at midnight.

"Only if property is widely distributed among many millions of our people, if everybody has a share in the goods of the world, can we hope to supply a proper offset to the communist idea negating private property."

"It follows that we want our middle class, which is becoming poorer and poorer, and whose means of livelihood is cut off more and more by large businesses, again to be placed in a position where they can have their share in the world's goods."

In America everyone still carries a marshal's baton in his knapsack. With us the middle class, the backbone of our country, is being wiped out. That is what the nazi movement will try to avert."

CABINET WILL SEEK DICTATORIAL POWERS
BERLIN, Aug. 18.—(UP)—The German political crisis shifted rapidly tonight toward assurances that the cabinet of Chancellor Franz von Papen will continue to rule with dictatorial powers.

A short life for the new reichstag, convened August 30, was considered almost certain, with two possible developments:

First, an agreement on the part of a majority of deputies to permit declaration of a prolonged parliamentary recess during which time the cabinet would continue in power.

Second, and perhaps more probable, a request by Colonel Von Papen and Defense Minister General Kurt von Schleicher for president Paul Hindenburg to dissolve parliament and thus allow the government two months more of power.

The cabinet evidently is prepared to dissolve parliament rather than relinquish power after a vote of misconfidence in the reichstag, which is considered certain to hand the government an overwhelming defeat.

No Truce Expected In Tarheel Tag War

Georgia does not expect to seek any armistice in the tag war between this state and North Carolina, Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the state revenue commission, said Thursday after receiving official notice of the intention of North Carolina officials to require Georgia trucks and buses operated for hire to buy license plates.

"North Carolina," Doyal said, "some time ago proposed a 'gentleman's agreement' by which trucks would be permitted to come into this state, and enter that for limited trips but we could not subscribe to it. We have been requiring their trucks, operating for hire, to buy tags here and they are just adopting the same policy toward us."

PUBLIC BENEFITS IN WILL OF MAN WHO ASKED ADVICE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 18.—(P)—Walter F. Hering, millionaire philanthropist, who two years ago sought public advice as to how to dispose of his wealth, makes the public a leading beneficiary in his will, his attorneys reveal.

He leaves his 12-acre suburban estate, with its 21-room residence valued at $500,000, as convalescent home of non-sectarian and charitable character, and provides that the income from three-fourths of his estate, estimated at more than $2,000,000 in March, 1930, be used to endow the home in perpetuity.

Some of Hering's friends believe the suggestion may have been contained in one or more of the 500 letters that he received after he had sent out his anonymous request for philanthropic advice. Others said Hering first considered the idea of the convalescent home in 1924. He also left annuities for his widow and daughter and foundations for the maintenance of other benefactions.

INCOME TAX BILL WINS FIRST ALABAMA TEST

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 18.—(P)—The house ways and means committee today by vote of 17 to 9 approved the first administration measure offered in the extraordinary session of the legislature, an income tax amendment to the constitution.

The income tax, to be modeled after the federal statute in effect in 1931, was asked by Governor B. M. Miller in his message to the legislature Tuesday and was introduced yesterday.

Efforts to delay action, pending public hearings, were defeated by administration forces who contended, if submitted at the general election on November 8 for ratification, the amendment must be passed by both houses and approved by September 3.

The committee voted unanimously to report favorably a resolution by Representative Poole, of Butler, that no revenue measures be considered, except the income tax, until retrenchment measures have become law.

Meanwhile the senate committee on finance and taxation voted a favorable report for the resolution reducing the pay of senators from $8 per day to $6, but a bill designed to combine the offices of county tax assessor and county tax collector and place them on a salary instead of fees was indefinitely postponed.

Senator Bonner, of Wilcox, lost his first battle for reducing state salaries, his measure for a horizontal cut of 20 per cent being amended three times and postponed until the next meeting of the committee for action.

LEGION LEADERSHIP LAUDED BY HOLDER IN MAYSVILLE TALK

MAYSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 18.—Praise for the American Legion for the interest it has taken in governmental affairs since the World War was bestowed today by John N. Holder, candidate for governor, who delivered a patriotic address here under the auspices of the local post of the Legion. Music was furnished by the American Legion band of Jefferson. "More and more each day the people are looking to members of the American Legion for leadership," Mr. Holder said. "No finer or better body of young men can be found in any state than those who offered their lives for their country and returned to civil life after enduring the hardships of the battlefield fighting for the cause of freedom."

"In times of peace, however, there are battles to be fought and problems to be solved. It is gratifying to see the young men of the Legion attacking these problems with the same boldness and resourcefulness they showed in the World War. Much of the responsibility of the future government of the state rests on the shoulders of you courageous young men and I know you will go into the battles of peacetime with the same spirit with which you entered the fields in war."

CRISP DISCUSSES ELECTRICITY TAX

Veteran Invades Rival's District, Given Ovation by Huge Audience.

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Aug. 18.—Carrying his fight to the congressional district of his youthful opponent, Representative Charles R. Crisp today addressed one of the largest gatherings ever to assemble for a political speech in Hall county.

Overcast skies and intermittent showers failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the huge crowd which overflowed the courthouse and braved the wet weather outside for nearly two hours to hear him severely arraign his opponent and plead for a campaign based on major issues rather than abuse. So great was the crowd, the largest witnessed here in years, that it was necessary to rig up loud speakers on the outside. Every available space in the court room was jammed and the speaking was delayed while the voice amplifiers were installed.

Many Counties Represented.
Judge Crisp's reception was a repetition of others that have followed in the wake of his north Georgia tour throughout the day he was sought after by a long list of friends and admirers. In the vast audience rather were large number of farmers and representatives not only of Hall county but a half dozen other counties in the 9th district.

Introduced by J. Nat Harrison, prominent Hall county farmer, Judge Crisp had the enthusiasm of the crowd with him when Mr. Harrison referred to Governor Russell as a false Moses who, he said, had deserted his post of duty in the middle of the wilderness without leaving a Joshua to see his original followers through. The audience roared its approval.

Many of Judge Crisp's supporters have heartened him with reports that a definite reaction has set in against his opponent in this district because of the varied charges hurled at the congressman's personal integrity. The statements were made by trained observers of the 9th district that the sentiment has turned over in several counties in the district because of his reputation of these tactics and his sweeping attack of the charges leveled at him.

Discusses Electric Tax.
Here in a city where one of the leading supporters of Governor Russell is the attorney for the Georgia Power Company, Judge Crisp, one of the three most important leaders of a democratic-controlled house of representatives, discussed the electric energy tax, which his opponent is seeking to make the chief issue of the campaign. Tracing step by step the history of the power tax as adopted by congress, he told his audience that Governor Russell was engaging in political demagoguery, realizing that in no other manner has he a chance of misleading the people of Georgia into believing he is qualified to serve in the high office of United States senator.

"Only through a campaign of vilification and abuse," he declared, "can he hope to deceive people into voting not for him but against me. He is not content to run on his own record or mine. He is incapable of discussing either without 'distortion.' The one school of politics in which he is trained is mud and character assassination and he pursues that without regard to facts or principles."

Denounces Tactics.
Judge Crisp said the governor's misrepresentation of his part in the electric energy tax was a striking example of the unfair imputations charged to him. "Although I have never owned a share of stock in any power company and have consistently voted against measures in which they were interested," he said, "my opponent charges I am controlled by them. He seeks to arouse popular prejudice against me on account of one of the companies' misdeeds, yet he is content to appoint their representatives to positions of high trust."

NORTH GEORGIANS BORN POLITICIANS, EDWARDS CLAIMS

THOMASTON, Ga., Aug. 18.—There are more politicians "born in the ridge running from Atlanta to Athens and into north Georgia to the square miles than anywhere else in the world," E. B. Edwards, Valdosta candidate for governor, said in a campaign speech here today.

"When a baby is born up there," Edwards said, "his mother rocks him to sleep each day with a lullaby telling him to run for something when he gets big enough. Jim Kelley is a fair sample. Abit Nix is overcoming his youthful bashfulness. John Underwood, the perpetual runner, is ambling right along this year. Hoke O'Kelley is running just because he came off that ridge. A station agent at Sumners has this running fever."

"Tom Hardwick, who was raised down among the pine saplings, took a post-graduate course several years ago up there and is running for ever since. Eugene Talmadge ran for everything from dog catcher up and down in Telfair county and wouldn't get to first base. He accidentally beat J. J. Brown for state office and got up there around that north Georgia ridge and he has not quit running since."

HAMILTON SUPPORTERS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Fulton county friends of George B. Hamilton, candidate for state treasurer, will hold a rally in his behalf at headquarters at the Henry Grady hotel beginning at 7 o'clock tonight. It was announced Thursday.

A preliminary meeting was held Tuesday night at which delegates from various wards decided on the general rally to which all his friends and supporters have been invited.

be balanced and its credit structure maintained.

Politics vs. Morality.

"If I made any mistake it was not on the side of morality, but rather of politics. If I had wanted to play safe politics I would have been dishonest and either accepted the tax as levied by the senate or killed it outright. I could have done either. And I could have been elected United States senator from Georgia without the necessity of even a statewide campaign. But because I did what seemed to be the right thing, I do under the circumstances, I am compelled to defend my integrity and such character as I have been able to build through conscientious devotion to duty as a representative of my district in congress for 19 years."

Judge Crisp referred to the character assaults with an earnestness that drew cheers from his listeners, and when he denounced his maligners the vast crowd listened to him attentively. It applauded again when he referred to the state supreme court in which the Georgia Power Company is involved.

"What my opponent charges me with selling out to the power companies," the congressman declared, "is appealing to the passions and prejudices of mankind. He is being dishonest with himself and with you. He is demagoguing—that's all."

Farm Problems Discussed.

Judge Crisp, not omitting any part of the power discussion, told his auditors that Senator George Norris, of Nebraska, author of the senate provision for a crisis might have occurred. Unfortunately for myself, the conferees were limited to the tax provisions as contained in the house and senate bills before us.

"We could not go beyond these to seek new sources of revenue. We either had to reach a compromise on the items before us or send the bills back to the two houses for further consideration and delay.

"I have no apologies for what I have done. I was serving my country and it didn't matter, as I said on the floor of the house, whether I as an individual congressman was defeated for sponsoring that tax legislation, but it was a matter of the gravest importance to the nation that its budget

TALMADGE'S PLATFORM SCORED BY HARDWICK

Commissioner's Program Called "Pocket Full of Memoranda."

JESUP, Ga., Aug. 18.—Speaking this afternoon to a large and enthusiastic audience in the Wayne county courthouse, former Governor Thomas W. Hardwick characterized the platform of Eugene Talmadge as "a pocket full of memoranda which he has accumulated in his travels over Georgia."

"He will go to a place," said Mr. Hardwick, "and somebody will take him aside before he speaks and ask him to say something about freight rates, and he will deliver himself of a long dissertation on that subject, assailing the audience that if elected governor he will bring about a general reduction of freight rates, with especial attention to the rates on farm products."

"Of course, every person in Georgia that has the slightest knowledge of the subject is aware of the fact that the governor has nothing whatever to do with freight rates. Mr. Talmadge could have accomplished just as much, as commissioner of agriculture, toward bringing about a reduction of freight rates as he could accomplish it as governor. He is a man of the balance of his life."

"Then somebody will ask him to say something on the subject of education and he adopts that suggestion and faithfully delivers a long harangue on nuisance taxes; and a day or so later we see in the newspapers that he is broadcasting on the subject of the board of regents of the university; and presently he switches to the subject of the reorganization of the departments of the state government; and so on, and so forth, ad infinitum."

"Starting his campaign with no platform, no plan, no program and no definite idea (with the possible exception of giving every motor vehicle a license tag for $3), he has accumulated a hodge-podge of what he considers vote-catching material as he went along."

"Anything that Talmadge imagines will appeal to a group, he will instantly adopt when it is suggested to him. His platform, if such it might be called, resembles an old-fashioned crazy quilt, composed of all varieties of material in all shapes and colors. Besides the Wayne county people who heard Mr. Hardwick, among them being a large contingent of women voters, the audience included delegations of Hardwick supporters from Appling, Tattnall, McIntosh, Brantley and Pierce counties."

In the course of his speech, Mr. Hardwick called attention to his engagement to speak in Telfair county on the night of Mr. Talmadge, Friday afternoon.

Summers To Deliver First Campaign Speech

F. B. Summers, Atlanta and Jonesboro candidate for governor, will make his first speech of the campaign at Newnan today. A statement from his headquarters Thursday said:

"Mr. Summers has designedly delayed making any speeches until now because the other candidates have abused and wearied the people by running all over the state squawking about this and that. Dry people and church people are lining up for Summers."

WHITELEY STRESSES NEED FOR ECONOMY

RICHMOND, Ga., Aug. 18.—J. W. Whiteley, of Warrenton, Ga., candidate for commissioner of agriculture, spoke here today. He especially stressed rigid economy and high efficiency in office and further that he was well qualified for the place he was at present cultivating a large acreage and had been for 30 years.

"We have heard a lot of promises and talk of farm aid during the past 12 years of republican rule," he said, "but when the democrats take over control of the federal government after the November election, a different situation will prevail. We, as democrats, will deal less with talk and more with action."

Judge Crisp also discussed the soldier bonus and activities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which he said had gone far toward improving commodity prices. He assailed the reorganization plan of Governor Russell and accused his opponent of coloring his record to deceive voters of the state. Finally, he brought the state executive sharply to task for criticizing his (Crisp's) leadership in the fight to pass the amended Reconstruction Finance Corporation act and then borrowing funds with which to pay off Georgia school teachers and meet other obligations of the state.

"I know when I worked for passage of that bill," he said, "that it would be an instrument for the governor to use against me. Still, I did think he would have sportsmanship enough not to take advantage of its facilities and then condemn me for its passage."

HOWARD IS ELECTED RUSSELL CLUB HEAD

DeKalb Supporters of Governor Hold Organization Meeting in Decatur.

Ex-Congressman William Schley Howard was elected president of the DeKalb County Russell-for-the-Senate Club at an organization meeting held in the city hall in Decatur Thursday night.

Howard's election preceded an address in which the former fifth district representative assailed the record of Congressman Charles R. Crisp, eulogized "the immortal Woodrow Wilson" and three republican senators, Howard, Norris and Borah, and scored the New York Herald Tribune and Chicago Tribune as republican newspapers which he said had endorsed Crisp for promotion to the senate.

Howard particularly attacked the vote of Crisp on electric energy, asserting that "if Charlie Crisp is an intellectual giant I am a direct lineal descendant of Solomon."

"Ask any congressman from Georgia," Howard said, "when Charlie Crisp got to be such a great man, I will bet a saddle horse to a burnt ginger cake that he won't get in the same county on the same day with 'Dick' Russell."

Mrs. W. R. Simpson was elected vice president, John Wesley Weekes secretary and Scott Candler treasurer of the DeKalb club.

BANKER KILLS SELF AS BOOKS ARE AUDITED

TRENTON, Tenn., Aug. 18.—(AP) Robt. Banks, 29-year-old bookkeeper of the Bank of Commerce here, was found dead this afternoon, five hours after state bank examiners began an audit of his books.

A jury, summoned by Coroner W. G. Bradshaw, returned a verdict of suicide by poisoning and estimated that Banks had been dead four or five hours when his body was found in clubrooms over the bank building at 3 p. m.

A preliminary report showed a shortage of $1,900 in Banks' books. Officers of the Bank of Commerce said the institution was protected by a surety bond. Atkins Boone, assistant cashier, who found the body, said that the bookkeeper left the bank at 10 o'clock this morning, when the audit began.

MRS. R. MITCHELL, 91, DIES AT HOME HERE

Atlanta Resident for Many Years, Succumbs to Long Illness.

Mrs. Rowena G. Mitchell, 91 years of age, died Thursday morning at her residence, 803 Peachtree street, N. E., after an illness of several years. Mrs. Mitchell had been a resident of Atlanta since 1875 and was widely known and beloved of a large circle of friends.

The widow of Captain Henry Carleton Mitchell, who served with General Robert E. Lee in all of the Virginia campaigns, Mrs. Mitchell was the oldest living graduate of Wesleyan College, Macon, having graduated from that institution in 1857. She likewise was the oldest living member of St. Mark Methodist church and, until failing health forced her into confinement, she always had taken an active interest in work of that church.

A musician of talent herself, Mrs. Mitchell for many years exhibited a keen interest in musical affairs of Atlanta, and on the 90th anniversary of her birth, she celebrated by playing a piano duet with a daughter. Prior to the removal of the family from Columbus 57 years ago, she was one of the most prominent women in the society of that city and will be widely remembered among the older of Columbus' citizens.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the Peachtree chapel of Brandon, Bond & Condon, the Rev. Dr. S. H. C. Burgin, pastor of St. Mark Methodist church, officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

Surviving are a daughter, Miss Martha Mitchell, of Atlanta; and five sons, Guy Mitchell, Miami Beach; Dr. Carleton Mitchell, New Orleans; Walter Gunby Mitchell, of Tuskegee, Ala.; Colonel R. B. Mitchell, of Tulsa, Okla., and R. A. Mitchell, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

NEGRO MAN IS SHOT IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

The second attempt in one night to hold up William Garrett, delivery boy for Huie's pharmacy at 453 Boulevard, N. E., proved painful for one of two negroes who were fired on by Pete Cefalu, of 250 Forrest avenue, N. E., according to police reports Thursday. The delivery boy had been robbed of $1 earlier Wednesday night, and when a telephone order was received asking that the boy be sent to 250 Forrest avenue, N. E., the drug clerk became suspicious when he failed to recognize the voice as that of Cefalu. Warned, Cefalu waited in ambush until the delivery boy appeared and was accosted by two negroes, police said. Cefalu fired and hit one of the negroes, who was helped away by his companion. Police locked up Henry Jones on suspicion when he appeared at Grady hospital for treatment from a gunshot wound. Jones claimed that he was struck accidentally by a stray bullet, police said.

ATLANTA BOARD SPLIT ON INTANGIBLE TAX

Members of the Atlanta real estate board are divided on the question of approving the proposed constitutional amendment to be voted on in November which would classify intangible property for taxation. Last October the directors approved the tax, and a similar approval was voiced in December, last, by the Georgia Real Estate Association. Recently the Atlanta board appointed another committee to study the question. This committee consisted of B. M. Grant, R. C. Mizell and Ward Wright. Mr. Mizell was opposed to the majority report which favored the amendment when the committee met for a discussion Thursday afternoon. It was decided to hold up action until the next meeting of the board's directors.

SUPERVISION SOUGHT FOR LOAN COMPANY

Judge Edgar E. Pomeroy Thursday signed an order requiring R. E. Gormley, state superintendent of banks, to appear in court on August 30 to show cause why a mandamus should not be issued requiring the Georgia department of banking to include under its supervision the Bankers' Savings & Loan Company, on Pryor street. The action is sought by the Better Business Bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and no criticism is made in the action of the banking company's operations nor allegations as to its solvency. The action alleges merely that the firm is doing a banking business and is not under state supervision.

N. Y. REQUISITION REFUSED BY RUSSELL

A requisition from Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt to Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. for the return to New York state of Percy E. Fuller, wanted on a perjury charge, has been declined by the Georgia executive. Perjury charges against Fuller, records in the executive offices showed, grew out of an indictment for approximately $150,000 which Mrs. Milla D. Shonis, also of New York, secured against Fuller, a former broker, for an alleged conversion of bonds which she had entrusted to him. Fuller was represented at the hearing before the governor by Hugh Howell and Allen Post, of the law firm of Howell, Heyman & Bolding.

The Snelling Grocery Company has opened its third grocery store in the Oasis Market on Peachtree street near Baker, it was announced on Thursday.

Secret Service Seeks "Stretchers" of Money

Secret service operatives Thursday were seeking to make the acquaintance of a clever man who sells $25 worth of currency for $30 by a system of snipping five bills into pieces and patching the bits into six bills. Although not new, the process is unusual and even experienced bank tellers accept the mutilated bills without noticing the changes, it was said.

Some of the piece bills are worth one-half their face value and a few of them full value, as any currency is redeemable if three-fifths of the original bills remains, officers said. Less than one-half of a bill is worthless and some of the bills being passed do not contain a piece as large as one-half the original size. Pointing out that it is the public that is being duped, secret service operatives said that persons receiving such bills have the right to cause the arrest of the person attempting to pass them.

UTILITY CONTACT LAID TO RUSSELL

Crisp Managers Issue Detailed Charges, Listing Power "Friends."

Campaign managers for Congressman Charles R. Crisp, G. Ed Maddox and W. W. Dykes, Thursday charged that Governor Richard B. Russell Jr. "brazenly hides behind the screen of the office of governor in his bold, false statements, and when he is called he waves them aside, silently acknowledges his guilt and hopes that the public will forget."

Pointing out that the governor "has ridden his little hobby horse, the electric energy tax, over hills and valleys, until his friends are wondering if he really understands it himself," Maddox and Dykes charged that a director of the Georgia Power Company is on the governor's executive committee, a special attorney of the power companies is chairman of the executive committee, his northeast Georgia leader is attorney for the power company and still another leader, at Jonesboro, "who entertains him when he speaks there, is attorney for the Georgia Power Company."

"Judging from the recent press reports of his speeches, especially at Thomaston and Jonesboro, Governor Russell has again lost his temper, and in keeping with his custom since his campaign began, he is denouncing everybody and everything who dares to tell the truth about him."

"Again Mr. Russell pays his respects to Hon. T. Hicks Fort, of Columbus. Mr. Russell knows Mr. Fort and knows he is honorable and fearless, hence it is no surprise that he, Mr. Russell, writes when his own record of failure and broken promises is so faithfully and forcefully given to the public by Mr. Fort."

Disavow Fort Letter.

"Mr. Russell also pays his respects to Dr. A. G. Fort, of Atlanta, who is a man of the highest integrity, one of the state's leading and most highly respected physicians. Neither Mr. Crisp nor his managers had anything to do with the letter written by Dr. Fort, nor did they incur any expense incident to the handling of it. We happen to know, however, that Dr. Fort and his associates tried very hard to save the state board of health from being placed in the political machine of the governor."

"If Mr. Russell understood the real responsibility devolving upon a man who occupies the position of governor, and if he understood the responsibility of the office of United States senator, he would never have violated the trust which the people placed in him when he promised to relieve the deficit of the state of Georgia, to remove factional politics and to abolish machine rule in Georgia. However, when he sees the senatorial office vacant, the hope of securing the bigger plum blinds him, and he forgets his promises and his duty to the people who trusted him. He sets forth in his quest for a new job which pays a bigger salary."

Extra Session Argument.

"Mr. Russell in trying to justify his position so far from himself in his many speeches as to charge the farmer with being potential criminals, has called the extra session of the legislature at the behest of the farmers; that Mr. Crisp would have passed a law which the farmers would have violated and he would have put them on the chain gang. Mr. Russell simply lost his head in making this charge. The farmers are not criminals, and if they could have secured the passage of remedial legislation to save them from disaster, which Mr. Russell spurned, they would have complied with the law. Georgia farmers are law-abiding people, not criminals. When they met at the capital and in their humble way appealed to Mr. Russell for aid he did not respond and now when he tries to justify his conduct, he charges that they would have turned criminals. This is further evidence that Mr. Russell does not know what he is doing and is blindly fighting for anything in the hope of advancing his own interest."

Jonesboro Talk Rapped.

"Mr. Russell has ridden his little hobby-horse, the electric energy tax, over hills and through valleys, until his own friends are wondering if he really understands it himself. In his Jonesboro speech he boldly makes the statement that the power companies would not dare go before the public service commission seeking an increase in rates and concludes as follows: 'If they got what they deserve the rates would be lowered materially.'"

"What a pity. Mr. Russell here acknowledges that the power rates are too high, yet during all his official connection with the state, he has never raised his voice to aid the people in lowering the rates."

"This is further proof of his desperation and acknowledgment of his hopelessness. The governor can force the rates to be lowered. If these rates deserve to be lowered, as he states, why doesn't he show his real interest in the people of Georgia and the users of electricity and have it done?"

"Hides Behind Screen."

"Last week at Pearson in his desperation he charged the managers of the Georgia Power Company with being guilty of a diabolical crime in an effort to bribe a sheriff. His statement was challenged but as yet he has not had the courage, nor the manhood, to reply to the letter mailed to him. He brazenly hides behind the screen of the office of governor in his bold, false statements, and when he is called he waves them aside, silently acknowledges his guilt and evidently hopes that the public will forget."

"Mr. Russell may think the people of Georgia have forgotten his bold effort to force himself into the United States senate by bartering the office as he has done, but he is soon to be reminded that the office belongs to the people of Georgia and they will

List of Power Contacts.

"As he, Masquerades around the state claiming to be the idol of Georgians and perfection in all matters political, Mr. Russell again uses the screen of the title of governor, carries his campaign to a very low level and attacks Mr. Crisp as being a tool of the power trust. Evidently he thought he would succeed in fooling the people in this respect, but as his campaign organization opens up in Fulton county we find:

"A director of the Georgia Power Company on his executive committee. Special counsel of the power company chairman of his executive committee."

"His leader in northeast Georgia, at Gainesville, attorney for the power company."

"Another one of his leaders at Jonesboro, who entertains him (Mr. Russell) when he speaks there, is attorney for the Georgia Power Company."

"The governor forgets that the people of Georgia are fond of investigating and relying upon the truth. Doubtless he will wait and whine again when he is met with these truths, for he can no longer hoodwink the people of Georgia."

"Indulging as he has in the highly unscrupulous methods he adopted as his campaign standard, and finding himself forced to resort to begging and whining, now that he is confronted with the real facts—that officials of the power company are backing him up, he is endeavoring to evaluate the intellect and integrity of the people of Georgia he will be convinced that the majority of Georgians believe in truth and fair play. He will remember also that Georgians will prefer to endorse men of real character and ability for high public office."

"The people of Georgia cannot be swept from their balance by falsehood and appeal to prejudice. As they show their preference on September 14 for Charles R. Crisp for the United States senate, they will at the same time perform a real service for Mr. Russell. They will send him back home to reflect, and in the future as Richard Russell undertakes to evaluate the intellect and integrity of the people of Georgia he will be convinced that the majority of Georgians believe in truth and fair play. WOMEN ARE ACTIVE IN ABIT NIX CAMPAIGN

Organization in Athens Reports Branches in Many Counties.

Women's organizations supporting Abit Nix for governor have been organized in more than 100 counties in Georgia.

Mrs. Elizabeth Allgood Birchmore, of Athens, Thursday announced how the organization has progressed under the leadership of Mrs. A. S. Parker.

"On August 8 the women of Athens moved into the headquarters of the Women's Organization for Abit Nix," the announcement said, "and under the leadership and direction of Mrs. A. S. Parker, civic leader of the city, who was elected chairman for the state of Georgia at large, started a bombardment of letters and speakers for Mr. Nix that startled Georgians from a state of lethargy into one of keen activity. Both the accusation and boast of Americans has been that the women brought about the prohibition amendments. When the women of Athens saw Abit Nix roll up his sleeves and start out for the gubernatorial chair, they hung their aprons in their kitchens and clad themselves to follow his lead."

The method of presenting Abit Nix to the people is to organize women's organizations for Nix in every county of the state. In nine days' time more than 100 of the 159 counties have been contacted and in a majority of these a chairman selected and a local organization gotten under way.

"The click of typewriters in the headquarters, the low hum of voices, the ring of the telephone, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 11 at night, is an indication of the activity being expended toward reaching a goal."

"Hundreds of letters pour into the office from out-of-town friends. All over the state the women are following the ring of the telephone, are talking and working for Abit Nix. Mrs. Walter B. Hill, wife of the former chancellor of the University of Georgia and well known to all Georgia-

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

BY CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Two sophomores in a co-educational college write asking this question:

"What qualities do girls take into consideration when they rate the boys and what qualities do boys consider when they rate the girls?" It will take two columns to answer this double-barreled question and in the first one I will answer for the girls. The average young girl rates her boy friends largely by instinct and it is not a bad guide for a young girl. She hasn't learned to think, in fact, she hasn't felt the necessity for it and the course of study and the mental discipline of college don't bear their fruit for some time after she has made friends with the boys. That blessed faculty we call woman's intuition stands her in good stead in the early years.

There is a certain columnist, whose writings appear in hundreds of newspapers throughout the country. There are a great many men and women who read his material and his method of handling it but I have yet to hear of one woman that doesn't eat it with a spoon and call for more. He is full of humor and he is able to make witty remarks about the things that amuse him. Chief among these subjects is himself. Never a day but he ridicules himself in a high diverting manner. The point is that one of the most attractive attributes any boy can have is a sense of humor. And if he has, in addition, a witty tongue to set the humor in motion, then he is likely to be irresistible to the girls. Laughter is as necessary to youth's enjoyment of life as is love later on. The serious-minded, sober-faced, joyless boy hasn't a chance with the girls when a rollicking, frolicking, laughing boy is around. Later perhaps she may see the sober one in another light, but youth loves laughter.

Good grooming is a big consideration with the average girl when she rates a boy. Good grooming means clean skin and hair and teeth and nails and ends with a clean shirt and tie and handkerchief, shined shoes and pressed pants. The girl isn't content with it, perhaps when she is giving a boy credit for good grooming, but it is a real index of neat and orderly mental processes. But the girl just instinctively finds cleanliness and neat dressing pleasing to her senses. There is an old joke, not new, about the horse trader that trotted out a blind nag, hoping to sell it to some hapless buyer. The horse ran out from the stable and ran into a telegraph pole. The trader, unabashed by the accident, said to the prospective buyer: "He's just young and careless and don't give a darn." There is some good philosophy in that joke. Even horses are attractive when they are young and careless. So are boys; and the girls are quick to give approval to such a quality. Generosity is one of the manifestations of this characteristic. A girl hates to see a boy friend appear thoughtful about money. Of course, economically speaking, he should be thoughtful about it, but unstudied generosity is attractive to the young female. You see, girls are not concerned with moral equations.

as they should be, and as they will be when older.

Nor does the average young girl care about the distinctions a boy may have earned. She does like him to be strong enough to "take charge." She likes to have a boy friend with whom she can feel safe, one that can look after her when she is dancing, swimming, riding or dining. She, being a female, likes the sensation of leaning on a strong arm. At the same time nothing is more offensive to her than a selfish, iron-will boy that always wants his way, one that always asserts himself regardless of her wishes and one that puts it off he can't put it over. In other words, she likes him to be manly and independent, but not mean and dominating.

Besides these attractive qualities that the girls consider well and rate highly, there are some others that merit low rating from the girls' standpoint. Conceit heads the list of these. Oh, how a girl does despise a conceited boy! She may smother her amusement before his face but she makes all manner of fun of him behind his back. She doesn't take him at his own valuation. She puts her own valuation on him. She doesn't even give him credit for his good points, so tied up she is in hearing him discuss them.

Not long ago a group of young people were swimming in a public pool. The only girl present and an accident with her bathing suit of which she was perfectly unconscious. The boys giggled slyly at her predicament. Even the boy that was dating her participated in the fun at her expense. But one boy had an inspiration. He swam over to the girl, told her that she was in trouble, and offered to go to the dressing room to get her a wrap, warning her to keep submerged until he returned. This is a sample of good manners that girls rate highly and grown people, too, for that matter.

Psychic Opening Bids

I am frequently asked my opinion of psychic bids. I always reply that if intelligently used they may be of great value against inept opponents. I do think that an excessive use of them would tend to spoil the game, but the element of intelligent bluff can be just as much a part of Bridge as it is of poker. The other day I received a letter from a man who wanted me to classify as moronic, a certain bluff bid which had been made against him. Whatever my feeling in the matter may have been, I was unable to agree with him in this particular instance, because, as he reluctantly admitted, this moronic bid had been made against him successfully.

Today's Pointer.

Psychic Opening bids—that is, Opening bids which depart from conventional standards—depend entirely for their value upon a keen appreciation of the psychology of both partner and opponents.

The bidding and play of the hand pointed below will be discussed tomorrow.

Both sides vulnerable.

Dusk Comes on Over Old Cherokee Nation and Ghosts of Sequoya and His Braves Pass By

SEQUOYA, Ga., Aug. 18.—Dusk has come on over the land that was once the Cherokee nation. The purple mountains have gone marching on into the vastness of the night. The cover has been tucked about them.

The air blows keenly here. In the lodge are lights and music. The first annual midsummer invitation golf tournament will see the first rounds played tomorrow. There is dancing, bridge and conversation.

There is a mystery out in the dusk. There is something about the stillness of a mountain which is 3,300 feet above sea level. Especially if the mountain was once the home of a nation that is gone.

And so, watching the majestic sweep of the tireless beacons that light the way for the night planes, one feels the mystery of the rocky walls of Burnt Mountain and the rolling darkness that breaks away about her, hiding other mountains and the valleys and the streams of the Cherokee nation. In the morning the sun will strike it all away, breaking in dazzling, beautiful colors across the sky.

The airplane beacons begin with Stone Mountain, a twinkling eye that is red and green and which sends a shaft of light seeking about the sky. And from then on one follows the lights, sweeping across all of Georgia to the Tennessee line and across it, ending finally with the light atop Lookout mountain in Tennessee.

From the lodge on the peak, the mountain breaks into a valley in which man has made a lake and a golf course. And walking about the course one kicks up, now and then, an arrow head of flint. Or a stone ax. Or a long, fierce spear point.

THE MYSTERY.

And that, I think, explains the mystery. Because it was in these mountains that the Cherokee, the proudest and the most cultured of all the Indian nations, made its last stand against the white man in Georgia.

Below, in the dark, are the twinkling lights in Cherokee county as we peer down from our eerie place on tall Burnt Mountain in Pickens.

Sequoya, they have named this place, and it does him honor. It is a tall proud mountain and it is fitting that the name should occur here. They named the giant redwoods of California for him, those colossal giants of the American forest.

It was he who gave to his race the honor of being the only tribe of Indians on the North American continent with a written language and an organized, national existence. In the opinion of linguistic scholars, the achievement of Sequoya is one of the greatest achievements of the human intellect. From the field of phonetics he developed 85 sounds. And he then made character representatives for them. He did not copy. He invented. And he had a newspaper printed for his people. So he was a newspaper man, too.

This Indian of mixed blood, hailing first from a Cherokee village in Tennessee, came to be, so the histories say, one of the most remarkable men who ever lived on Georgia soil. For 12 years he worked, organizing his nation.

A BITTER END.

There is no story as to his end. It was, no doubt, bitter. Because the end of the Cherokee nation was bitter as soldiers and vandals drove them from these mountains so that the pale face might have room. It was one of the inexorable moves of the moving finger, but it was bitter, nevertheless.

And so, Sequoya and his nation left something here besides Indian arrow heads of flint, to be picked up as curios.

And the old people tell me, down in the valley, that at night the wind blows from Enchanted mountain across the peaks to Burnt Mountain. Enchanted mountain is where the giants walked. The great giants of the mountain, with feet of stone measuring 17 1/2 inches across, walked on Enchanted mountain. And when the wind blows in winter they can be heard, stamping along like thunder, so that the sound rolls down the mountain into the valleys. The print of the feet in the stones can be seen to this day on Enchanted mountain but no one ever sees the giants any more.

There must have been a great village here once upon a time. Because there is a slope for it. And there are the arrow heads which were left. And there are pieces of pottery dug up now and then.

And it may have been in this village that the story of the Cherokee rose began. The story is that a young Seminole was captured by the Cherokees. He was ill and they waited for him to recover before putting him to torture and death.

A Cherokee maid was his nurse. And when the color began to come back to his cheeks and strength to his limbs, she aided him to escape. She turned back, as they left at midnight, and broke a twig from a vine over her father's cabin.

She kept it through all the flight across the mountains and down into the hidden camps of the Seminoles. And there she planted it at the door of her home.

And that is why the flower, with its white blossoms and golden centers, is known throughout the south as the Cherokee rose.

THE DRAGON SNAKE.

It may be that Ustuli, the great dragon snake which did not move like other snakes but which moved on feet at each end of its body, once crawled over Burnt Mountain in the days when it was the land of the Cherokees and before the pale face came with his reasoning to drive away the giants and Ustuli.

It was a hunter, visiting Cohutta mountain, who outwitted the great dragon. He ran along the side of the mountain instead of up or down it. And every time Ustuli stepped the weight of his body made him slip downward. And then the hunter set fire to the brush and the great snake died in the flames.

These and many other stories were told of the days when the Cherokee lived where the beautiful lodge now stands. And where the golfers walked this afternoon, painted braves once went forth to war.

And so it is easy, when standing in the dark looking across at the dark miles and the flashing beacons, to imagine that there is something still left of the Cherokees; that the rustle in the air is from the swish of some warrior's blankets as he comes back to look once more at his old land; that the distant rumble is from the feet of the giants as they walk across the mountains and that the soft stir in the trees is Cherokee Rose coming back for another flower.

NEW WEAPONS.

In the morning it will all be gone. The golfers will go forth armed with niblicks, drivers and putters instead of bows, arrows and spears.

But when night comes on again and the beacons light the skies for a hundred miles, one can walk to the brow and look down into the valley of the Cherokee nation and picture Sequoya and his people. And imagine that there is a mystery in the air. And for all I know there may be one.

CHICAGO AGAIN BEATS BOSTON IN LONG GAME

Brave Defense Cracks Sixth Time To Give Cubs Win.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The battle of extra innings raged on at Wrigley field today with the Cubs once more defeating the Boston Braves, 4 to 3, in 15 innings of brilliant and erratic baseball.

As the Boston defense cracked for the sixth time in the long battle to permit English, who had singled, and Cuyler, who had sacrificed, to reach third and second on a wild throw with nobody out, Riggs Stephenson stepped to the plate and hit "Socks" Seibold's first pitch to left field for the winning wallop of the game. The wild toss was made by Catcher Spohrer.

The overtime game extended the three-game series between the two clubs to 43 innings with the Cubs now two and one-half games in front of the idle Pittsburgh Pirates in the National league race. They defeated the Braves, 4 to 3, in the first game on the tide of a 4-run rally in the ninth inning, captured yesterday's battle, 3 to 2, in 19 innings and came back to win in 15 today.

Guy Bush, the third Cub pitcher to take the mound today, gained the distinction of winning two games in as many days by pitching to just seven batters. He relieved Tinning and pitched one inning to win yesterday.

Huck Betts, always a star for the Cubs, pitched 14 full innings before he was retired for a pinch batsman in the Braves' half of the 15th, when the Boston rally boomed and fizzled. Clark, batting for him, was purposely passed, landing the bases with one out. Ford, who had replaced Maraville, tapped weakly in front of the plate and into a double play, Bush to Hartnett to Grimm. The Braves never got another chance.

Charlie Root and Bob Smith were the other Cub pitchers, both making way for unsuccessful pinch-hitters in the tenth and fourteenth innings.

NEW ORLEANS BOYS TRIUMPH

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18.—(AP)—The New Orleans American Legion Junior baseball team fought its way to the southwestern regional championship today by defeating the Oklahoma City, Okla., team by a score of 8 to 2. The game was called in the first half of the seventh inning because of darkness.

By virtue of its victory the New Orleans team won the right to enter the western elimination series at Omaha, Neb., August 23 to 25.

Earlier in the day the Oklahoma City team vanquished Harrisburg, Ark., 15 to 5.

Springfield Wins New England Title

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Springfield nine won the northern New England American Legion junior baseball championship here today by trouncing the Manchester, N. H., champions by a score of 8 to 0.

The Springfield team, representing the local post of the Legion, now goes to Gastonia, N. C., to compete in the eastern finals Tuesday. The winner of the series will contest at Manchester, N. H., with the champions of the western finals for the world Legion championship.

Columbia Beats Gastonia, 9 to 1

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 18.—(AP)—A 9-1 victory was scored by the Columbia team today over the Gastonia, N. C., team in the regional tournament for American Legion junior baseball teams. Rain halted the game in the eighth inning and postponed the game to Friday.

MERCER ALUMNI PLAN BANQUET

Distinguished sons of Mercer University in athletic and other fields attend a banquet commemorating the school's progress in athletics which is to be held at the roof garden of the Atlanta Athletic Club, Monday at 5:45 p. m.

Arrangements have been made to take care of 150 alumni.

Blair and Joseph McLean, dean of the Mercer Law school, will represent the university.

John T. Boileau, an alumnus, will act as toastmaster for the occasion.

Other guest alumni will include Judge Bascom S. Deaver, of the United States district court; Augustus A. Roodie, United States district attorney; and Congressman W. Carlton Mobley, Georgia's youngest representative.

Bill Monday will broadcast details of the Mercer-Florida game in 1924, which the Bears won 10-0 in the south's major upset of that season. Ed Camp (Ole Timer), of the Journal, will deliver a short talk on the progress of Mercer athletics, as will Ralph McGill, sports editor of The Constitution.

All alumni of the school residing in Atlanta are asked to attend the banquet, which is being sponsored by the Bears Club, young organization of Mercer alumni in the city.

WESTFIELD, N. J., Aug. 18.—(AP) Harmon Fitch, of Winston-Salem, N. C., seeded No. 9, scored an upset in the 16th annual national tennis championship at St. Paul, Minn., today by defeating Douglas Turner, of Chicago, former University of Illinois player and seeded No. 2. The score was 6-4, 8-6. Turner was runner-up in last year's tournament.

O. B. Williams, of Chicago, defeated Gerald Norman Jr., of Howard University, Washington, D. C., runner-up in the quarter final play in the annual Asheville Country Club invitation tournament.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Aug. 18.—(AP) Jim Spencer, slender Sanford (Fla.) golfer, came through with a par brand of golf today to defeat Jack Toomer, of Jacksonville, Fla., 4 and 3, in the feature of the quarter final play in the annual Asheville Country Club invitation tournament.

Albany Fans Proud Of Juniors Who Won

Large Number of Home Town Rooters To Accompany Sandlot Champs to Gastonia.

ALBANY, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—The Albany W. O. W. Juniors, Georgia sandlot baseball champions who yesterday won the southeastern regional meet at Montgomery by defeating the Florida and Mississippi champions, came home today to bask in the adulation of a community grown suddenly baseball conscious.

A sizable contingent of Albany fans cheered the youngsters in the final contest yesterday but an even larger delegation is already laying plans to accompany them to Gastonia, N. C., next week for the sectional tournament.

Led by the redoubtable Bobby Dew, who two years ago was scarcely larger than the catcher's mitt he wore, but who has grown prodigiously of late, the Albany 1932 team will go up against other regional winners with a record of having pulled an almost incredible number of games out of the fire at the last moment.

In the state championship here some weeks ago the Albanyans met Gainesville in the first game. For 12 innings they were blanked for eight runs, but in the 13th they broke loose to score seven times and win. Against Atlanta the following day they waited until two men were out in the ninth inning before driving over a pair of runs that brought their victory.

In the final game against Macoma the Albany boys trailed all the way, were blanked for eight frames, and again scored twice in the ninth after two were out to capture an exciting contest. Against West Palm Beach yesterday they took an early lead and were never headed, but in the title battle with Meridian, the Mississippians got a 4-1 lead in the early innings and would have won but for a two-run rally by Albany in the seventh.

Albany's hopes for victory at Gastonia rest mainly on the pitching arms of Sid Stapleton and "Goofy" Johnson. Stapleton hurled that 13-inning game against Gainesville and his lack of excitability at a time when the stands were in uproar caused considerable comment. The going may get tough at Gastonia, but Sidney will be throwing that ball in there as coolly as he skims rocks from the Flint river at home.

C. W. Thomas, bald-headed corner of Dougherty county, is coach of the team. He is "Uncle Clyde" to the sandloters and they think he is the best coach in the whole world because he believes in letting the boys develop initiative and fall back on their own resources when in a tight place.

In the state final contest with Macoma "Goofy" Johnson got in a bad hole in the ninth and was waved to the bench. But his mates wanted "Goofy" to stay in there and get his victory and they said so. Disregarding the pleas of the fans who wanted "Goofy" removed, Uncle Clyde let the boys run their own team in their own way and permitted "Goofy" to stick. He won his game.

Max Schmeling, Walker Sign for Big Battle

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—(UP)—Max Schmeling, former heavyweight champion, and Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., were signed today for a 15-round bout at Madison Square Garden's new Long Island bowl on September 19.

Their managers signed for them, neither boxer being present. The ceremony took place in the hotel apartment occupied by Jack Kearns, Walker's manager. Joe Jacobs did the pen work for Schmeling.

The signing was a mere formality for the benefit of photographers, the match having been announced on Monday. It is understood Schmeling will receive 35 per cent of the gate, and Walker 15. The New York Milk Fund also will share in the proceeds.

Schmeling will sail from Germany on Sunday. He will begin training at Speculator, N. Y., shortly after his arrival. Walker started training today at Madame Boy's camp, Summit, N. J.

The winner of the Schmeling-Walker fight is to get a match with Jack Sharkey, the heavyweight champion, next June. In two fights with Schmeling, Sharkey has come out even. He fought to a hard out even. He fought to a hard out even.

Sequoya Tourney Delayed by Rain

Qualifying To Begin This Morning With Match Play Scheduled on Saturday; Visitors Impressed by Beauty of Place.

By Ralph McGill.

CONNAHAYNE LODGE, SEQUOYA, JASPER, Ga., Aug. 18.—Eight of the first 16 golfers entered in the midsummer invitation tournament started out this morning only to meet a driving rain which swept down the Appalachian trail and across the peaks. They were a wet-looking lot at the end of nine holes and Bob Martin, without whom it is difficult to conduct a tournament in Georgia, so much is he in demand by the players, called the whole thing off for the day.

The three flights will get started Friday morning in the qualifying rounds. Match play will begin Saturday and continue through Sunday. This simply moves the tournament up one day as play was originally scheduled to end Saturday afternoon. Most of the better-known golfers in Atlanta and this section of Georgia are here for the tournament. Chief among them is Chickie Yates, Atlanta, who qualified for the amateur Tuesday in the trials at East Lake.

The day was one of rare beauty even though it did rain. The great clouds rolled down the mountainside as if pushed by some giant, invisible hands. The valleys were completely filled so that we seemed alone on our mountain peak.

The rain broke in the afternoon, shortly after lunch, and the skies cleared. This gave an opportunity for practice which a number of the entries took advantage of. The course was reported to be in splendid shape for the tournament.

LAST FORTY YATES.

This tournament marks the last complete tour for Chickie Yates before he goes to the national amateur at Baltimore in September. He will not participate in the city tournament.

Playing golf some 3,500 feet above sea level is something else that seems to require more wind, but I'll say this, there is more wind up here. Not that it blows too hard. There is just nothing to obstruct the progress of air. It comes from all directions, and rain-washed air at near a mile up is in a breeze.

Willie Livingston, the young assistant pro from Capital City, before he has been appointed trainer and seems to have his charges in good stead. Bertie Thompson, Tommy Barnes, well-known East Lake entries, and Rufus King, Druid Hills, are some of the youngsters from Atlanta who will compete with Yates for the city honors. Mills B. Lane Jr., of Savannah, is another excellent competitor. Canton, Ga., is sending all the Jones family. There are Robert Jones Jr., a cousin of Bobby Jones, Bob Jones and Ben Jones, also relatives, all here for the competition.

LAST FORTY YATES.

R. Tyre Jones Jr., who played in the state tournament at Capital City a few weeks ago, is one of the longest drivers in the south. Mack Sandow, no relative of the famous strong man, but still a strong competitor on the golf course; Ed Gittington, of T. B. Gilson and Rube Jones are other Canton entries. Nelson, Ga., has sent along Dr. J. P. Turk and J. K. Watt.

El Callaway and Eli Callaway Jr. are here from LaGrange. Pittsburgh is represented by M. D. Mims. L. P. Morton is here from Memphis.

Late entries from Atlanta included C. F. Palmer, T. B. Shropshire, Charles Shropshire, Stewart William Jr., and Mrs. E. W. McConnell. E. W. Gotterstrater, J. P. McConnell and Morgan McConnell Sr. and Morgan McConnell Jr. and Dr. Paul Key and Roy Mitchell, Atlanta, and others.

INDIAN RELICS.

The visitors here are fascinated by the large collection of Cherokee Indian relics which Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Barnett have collected and placed on display in the lobby. There are some especially beautiful and rare arrow heads and spear points, some pottery and moccasins.

The lodge is in the heart of the old Cherokee country and just off the old Appalachian trail, down which came the march of civilization.

C. Armand Thorpe, manager, is attending to the comforts of the visitors and correspondents.

SMOKIES BEAT CHICKS TWICE

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Playing ball as they rarely have this season, the seventh-place Knoxville Smokies beat Memphis down two games today, 2 to 0 and 2 to 0, to cut the Chicks' league leadership to a half game above Chattanooga.

With "Lefty" Larsen holding Memphis to eight scattered hits and no runs, the Smokies won the first game, 2 to 0. In the second game, "Lefty" hit four hits, all of which were for extra bases. Smith held the Chicks to four hits in the nightcap, while the Smokies combined hits off Griffin to win.

Piedmont Head Kicks On Giants' Transfer

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—(AP)—President W. C. Brannan has protested the transfer of players of the Winston-Salem club, of the Piedmont league, by the New York Giants, following the latter's surrender of the minor league franchise, K. M. Landis, baseball commissioner, said today.

Landis said no disposal could be made of the case until further information reaches his office. He did not have the names of the players, or where they were transferred.

THE SPORTLIGHT

The leading soothsayers and prophets, who have been answering all the queries and solving all future developments without the flicker of an eyelash, have now left for a vacation.

The National league race has driven them into temporary exile, far from the maddening crowd.

There was Pittsburgh leading the league by six games a few weeks ago. There was Brooklyn floundering in the middle of baseball's dismal swamp. Pittsburgh had Brooklyn outclassed.

And then Brooklyn, the trailer, wins 20 out of her next 25 contests and Pittsburgh, the leader, loses 14 out of 16 starts.

When a double turnover such as that can happen, one man's guess is as good as another. It was one of the most striking double reversals of form in baseball history, and with Chicago's Cubs gliding smoothly along, the older circuit suddenly has one of the best three-cornered scraps down the stretch that baseball has seen in a long time.

Four Clubs Have Chance.

Cubs and Pirates carry a temporary advantage, playing at home for a while. There's nothing like being close to the fragrant odor of home cooking when you are in a tough spot. But if Max Carey's revived Dodgers can hang on within two or three games of the top until the big race to Brooklyn, they have a great chance on the old home lot at the big spot of the race. Even Boston, St. Louis and Philadelphia can't be counted out yet. Some fast stopping will put any one of the three back in the middle of the picture.

There is a possibility that September's final rush will have at least four ball clubs with stout chances, since no National league entry yet has shown enough to show any dominating quality. All this will mean good money for the entire league, even in a tough economic year when the game of breaking even is no easy matter.

Opposition for Ouimet.

Francis Ouimet, the defending amateur golf champion, faces a heavy invading attack in the recent qualifying rounds for Baltimore's big show. Most of the good ones broke safely through from every sector. Take Don Moore, Chandler Egan and Frank Delp from the northwest, Charley Seaver and Harry Eichelberger from Los Angeles, the brilliant Gus Moreland from Texas, Jackson, Carter and Chaw from the Rocky mountain range, Johnny Goodman from Omaha, Lehman, Johnston, McCarthy, Dawson, Evans, Westland and others from the Midwest, Mackenzie, Howell, Sweetser, Dunlap, etc., from the east, plus Ross Somerville, of Canada, and the British Walker cup team—and you have all the competition any veteran champion care to face.

Ouimet waited 17 years to re-

Pros Disdain Changes Suggested by Coaches

Meeting at Atlantic City, They Adopt Only Substitutes and Stronger Equipment.

By Jimmy Jones.

Mr. "Curly" Fulton, first name unknown, but whom we all remember as a first-class lineman at Oglethorpe University back in his rah-rah days and now addicted to pastime with the Brooklyn Dodgers' professional football team, was discoursing on the changes in the football rules the other day between breathing spells from a one-man workout at Grant field.

Mr. Fulton, when encountered, was attired somewhat after the fashion of Tarzan of the Apes (movie version) and all he needed to complete the role was a few inches less of loin cloth and a spear. He attributed his regalia or lack of it to the August temperature, the recalcitrance of Grant field in the summer time and the fact that he was in the midst of a conditioning campaign and couldn't be bothered with any wear-more-cotton or wear-more-wool sentiment.

The ex-Petrel strong man produced a letter he had just received from Jerry Nemecek, captain and coach of the Dodgers, giving him the lowdown on what the professional football association had decided about the rules he revised by the college coaches during their winter meeting.

It seems that the professional coaches had their own private session at Atlantic City a few days ago and without any of the details getting to the press, passed some amendments to the amendments of their own making.

For instance, the professional men decided their players would continue to use their hands in line play regardless of collegiate interpretation; that they would continue to leave their feet to tackle and block and that their backs would NOT be halted in the act of adding extra yardage by the mere touching of a knee to the ground.

The professionals did accept two recommendations of the college coaches, however, and they dealt with the rule on substitutions and the strengthening of equipment. The pros decided those two innovations were all right, since they don't carry a great many substitutes anyway and more juggling of players will help. Since the pros but each other around right sharply, they didn't mind a little extra padding being added to the regalia.

The professionals adjourned by agreeing that they saw nothing wrong with football as is, outside of a possible chance that the grand old game could be a little rougher and not hurt any.

At the same meeting, the league agreed to take in the Boston Braves, which team will employ Jack Roberts and Marion Dickens, of Georgia.

Fulton and his pal, Stumpy Thompson, will leave around September 1 to report to the Dodgers. The latter team plans to have a much stronger outfit this year.

MORE PLAY.

Golfers are patronizing public courses in the St. Louis area in larger numbers this year than ever before. And there are more public links for them to patronize.

It's sleepy time out at the marathon dance at the Palais Peachtree as 1,410 hours of dancing are past, and tonight the remaining seven girls will observe "cot night," taking their rest in full view of the audience, it was announced Thursday night. A special program has been arranged in celebration of the birthday anniversary of two of the contestants, Billy Gracey, girl No. 7, and Walter Cox, boy solo from Mobile.

Following the grand of the past week, which led to the withdrawal of Ethel Wilson, Atlanta girl, the 15 dancers are all badly in need of sleep and another marathoner may fall out at any time, according to officials of the dance. Huge crowds have been in attendance.

FARM MEETING HELD AT LOG CABIN CENTER

MAYFIELD, Ga., Aug. 18.—A conference was held at the Log Cabin community center on Tuesday evening regarding an organization for co-operative buying to the many resident farmers and their families, some of whom came from a distance of three or four miles to this conference. Many of the people offered their ideas on the subject and a general discussion was held.

C. F. Reynolds, of Mayfield, spoke of the necessity of co-operation between white and colored people, and said there are good and bad elements in both races as well as different types. "Education," he said, "will make a better community."

A representative board consisting of seven members was organized to look into the different methods of co-operating in buying and selling and to learn everything about the project as far as possible, with a view of perfecting a commodity co-operative association for the community.

Members elected were: E. Cooper, chairman; G. Battle, P. Skrine, Mrs. F. Lewis, E. Lewis, G. Reid and W. Russell.

Visitors were C. F. Reynolds, E. L. Williams, Atlanta; W. Mason, Lincoln; M. Tate, Madison; G. White, Harlem.

FEDERAL LAW SEEN AS BLOW TO GEORGIA

MACON, Ga., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Enforcement of the federal act under which loans are made to farmers in exchange for a crop mortgage or bill of sale as security will mean that Georgia farmers will be denied a market for hundreds of thousands of bushels of wheat and corn, the Macon Telegraph says.

Officials of the Birdseye Flour Mills, of Macon, large purchasers of Georgia grain, were quoted as saying that they will be forced to discontinue random purchases here and patronize the western markets.

The Telegraph says that the federal act makes the purchaser responsible for payment of the outstanding mortgage to the extent of the purchase. It places on him the responsibility of ascertaining whether there is an outstanding mortgage or bill of sale on the crop. The act would send purchasers into every courthouse in the state on every transaction, it is claimed.

MRS. BLACKMAN

PASSES AT HOME AT 101 YEARS OF AGE.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Mary Ann Blackman, "the grand old lady of Columbus," died Thursday night at her home, 14 Fourth avenue, having lived 101 years and been a partner in one of the most remarkable marriages ever recorded. Her husband, Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., died on April 18, 1930, just six weeks before he would have reached his hundredth birthday.

Mrs. Blackman was born April 28, 1831, on Dresser Hill, Charlton, Mass., the daughter of Dexter and Ann Gordon Blackman. In 1851 she came south to visit her kinsmen, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Blackman, and in November of the same year became the bride of Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., and thus began a married life which knew comradeship and understanding of the rarest sort for 79 years.

Coming from a line of distinguished Americans, Mrs. Blackman's forefathers were worthy of their rich heritage, as throughout the long span of years they exemplified those traits of gentleness, dignity, honor and courage.

Living through the troublous pioneer days when Columbus was a trading post, she reared a family that existed for a hundred years almost in its entirety. At the time of his death April 18, 1930, Mr. Blackman was 84 years old, leaving behind him 12 children, 14 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren. In 100 years there had been only two deaths in the family, both grandsons, one an infant, the other, John Blackman Jr., who died after his graduation from Princeton University.

On November 18, 1929, Mr. and Mrs. Blackman observed their seventy-eighth wedding anniversary. Through a survey made by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Blackman, of Columbus, it was found to be the oldest living married couple in the United States, England, France and possibly in the world. At the time of their marriage, Mr. Blackman was 21 years of age, and Mrs. Blackman was 18.

A few months later the gallant husband was called by the Grim Reaper, leaving the gentle wife to spend her remaining years with their daughter, Miss Betsy Blackman, the home which for so long had sheltered their remarkable couple. Mrs. Blackman was a devoted wife and mother, and her life was a model of domestic excellence. She was a member of the Society of Colonial Dames of America, and an honorary regent of the Old South chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Blackman is survived by one son, Dana Blackman, and three daughters, Mrs. C. J. Edge, Mrs. W. L. Bullard, and Mrs. J. B. Blackman. On son, John Blackman, died two years ago. The grandchildren are Dexter Edge, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; David Edge, of Deland, Fla.; Owen D. Edge, C. J. Edge and Spencer Edge, Columbus, Mrs. William Hart, Leighton W. McPherson, Miss Dana Bullard, Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., Dr. Francis Blackman, Dr. Ray Blackman, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Jack Ellis, Dana Blackman Jr., Mrs. Archie Drake, of Macon, and 22 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will take place Friday at 4:30 p. m. from the residence with Dr. Robert Boyd, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. The pallbearers will be the following grandsons and grandsons-in-law: A. O. Blackman, Dr. Ray W. Blackman, Dana Blackman, Dr. Francis Blackman, Owen D. Edge, C. J. Edge, Spencer Edge, David Edge, Leighton McPherson, John T. Ellis, Archie Drake and Dexter Edge.

Songame Awards Will Buy

Many Things You've Wanted

$1,800 in Cash Will Fulfill Many Desires; All Answers in Book; First 15 Pictures Given to Contestants.

BY THE SONGAME EDITOR.

Have you postponed buying pretty things—or missed out on delightful trips and parties because you don't like to ask for more than your allowance? Have you ever wished for a nice blouse, so that you could write a check for whatever you wanted? In brief, could you use extra dollars? If you could, by all means take part in the Songame, sponsored for your pleasure and entertainment by The Constitution, and make up your mind to share in the prizes totaling $1,800!

Readers who began early, when pictures No. 1 were published, already know how thoroughly enjoyable this pastime has become; if you're just decided to invest your spare time in the Songame, you can catch up with your request. Pictures from No. 16 on are 5 cents apiece when bought singly, the price of the individual issues of The Constitution in which they were published. Any right pictures may be had for 30 cents, or 40 pictures (half of the series) for $1.25.

The Songame is as simple as can be. Each picture represents some song, and you have to do is identify it. There's no red tape. There are no subscriptions to get. The 40 cash prizes will be awarded to readers who supply the most correct answers.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—The Songame is tremendously interesting, and I am glad to have the list of songs and the composers given on the four-page circular. I have decided to get a copy of the book, "Songs We All Love." How long will you keep it on hand?—S. J. W., Atlanta.

A.—The publisher of "Songs We All Love," when he learned that Songame followers wanted copies of this interesting publication, arranged to supply The Constitution with a reasonable quantity of "Songs We All Love" will be available to readers throughout the contest. It includes all of the correct answers, and may be had for 50 cents a copy, or for 54 cents by mail. Songame players are under no obligation to buy this book, which is placed on sale to accommodate those who desire it.

Q.—Are some of the Songame pictures drawn so that they have a lot of misleading clues? Some of the answers aren't easy to get to—L. R. A., Athens, Ga.

A.—Each picture is drawn to represent one song title. No misleading clues are given. Some of the pictures may seem to fit more than one song title, but actually the correct answer is always the most appropriate one.

Q.—Should the answers be lettered or written in either hand?—W. M. H., Atlanta.

A.—The answers may be written in either hand.

Beloved Professor

Emertitus, With Faculty 52 Years, Dies at 71.

OXFORD, Ga., Aug. 18.—Harry Harlan Stone, professor-emertitus of Emory University and one of the most distinguished educators in the history of Georgia, died at his home here early this morning as the result of a heart attack. He had been associated with the faculty of Emory University and its predecessor, old Emory University Academy, for 52 years and was known and admired by thousands whom he had taught.

Scion of a prominent Georgia family, Professor Stone was born in Oxford on November 18, 1861. He was the son of George W. W. and Susan Capers Stone. He entered the academic department of old Emory College in 1873 and became a charter member of the class of 1880. Among his classmates were Judge Warner Hill, George John Chandler and Dr. L. T. Evans. Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution, was a fraternity mate of Professor Stone. A year after leaving his alma mater, Professor Stone was made a member of the faculty of Emory College as adjunct professor of mathematics. He was assistant professor of applied mathematics in 1912, and professor-emertitus in 1918.

Tribute to Alumnus.

In 1927, the Emory Alumnus, paying tribute to the long record of Professor Stone, stated:

"Professor Stone has been connected with Emory longer than any other faculty member. He has done more than any other person, regardless of years of service, in building up and conserving the sentiments and traditions of the school, the historic old Oxford."

To the forefront and painstaking care of Professor Stone is indebted for the collection and preservation of its treasured photographs of the old Oxford graduates, so many of whom have since won fame for themselves and for their alma mater.

Including the past half a century of continuous devoted service to Emory, Professor Stone served as librarian for 30 years; custodian of grounds and buildings for 33 years; secretary of the board of trustees of Emory College for 10 years; secretary of Alumni Association of Emory College for 25 years; treasurer of the board of trustees of the new university—a period of 29 years; as well as bursar and registrar for many years.

It was Professor Stone who designed the emblem of Alpha Epsilon Upsilon honor society and the great seal of the university, having been instantly approved by Bishop Warren A. Candler, who ordered the seal struck in accordance with Professor Stone's design.

Other Activities.

In addition to his 52 years of active service with Emory, Professor Stone found time to devote to local educational development, having been president of the Newton county board of education since 1930, receiving commissions from each governor of Georgia since 1890. He was also president of the Newton county board of education since 1930, receiving commissions from each governor of Georgia since 1890. During this period a large number of rural schools have been consolidated in Newton county and in the entire state, and the first system in the south embracing transportation of scholars to a central school was established under his leadership. He was also the first successfully operated system of rural school traveling libraries.

In 1885 Professor Stone married Miss Susan Stone, daughter of Dr. M. Bonnell, who for many years was president of Wesleyan College. Six children were born of this union, Margaret Judith, Bonnell Harold, George William, William Morton, Emma Lise and Susanne Elizabeth Stone.

For more than 50 years Professor Stone had been continuously a steward and member of the board of trustees of the Oxford church, as well as district steward, superintendent of the Sunday school, and a member of the North Georgia conference.

Early Roads Advocate.

He was the author of numerous magazine and newspaper articles especially in the interest of a system of good highways, even at a time long before the advent of the automobile and when but little interest was being manifested in a system of highways. Many of his writings pointed to the benefits to be derived by schools from improved highways, and other articles in the interest of a system of traveling libraries in rural sections, transportation of pupils to and from schools, and consolidation of outlying district schools.

Professor Stone was a member of Phi Gamma Literary Society, and of the Epistol chapter, Kappa Alpha fraternity.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Miss Emma Lise and Miss Susanne Stone; two sons, Howard and Bonnell Stone; and a brother, George W. Stone.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Oxford, with Bishop Warren A. Candler officiating, assisted by Rev. E. R. E. Long, Rev. Walter B. Branham and Rev. Nathan T. Thompson, of Oxford. It is expected that a large number of leading persons in the educational system of Georgia will attend.

Living through the troublous pioneer days when Columbus was a trading post, she reared a family that existed for a hundred years almost in its entirety. At the time of his death April 18, 1930, Mr. Blackman was 84 years old, leaving behind him 12 children, 14 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren. In 100 years there had been only two deaths in the family, both grandsons, one an infant, the other, John Blackman Jr., who died after his graduation from Princeton University.

On November 18, 1929, Mr. and Mrs. Blackman observed their seventy-eighth wedding anniversary. Through a survey made by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Blackman, of Columbus, it was found to be the oldest living married couple in the United States, England, France and possibly in the world. At the time of their marriage, Mr. Blackman was 21 years of age, and Mrs. Blackman was 18.

A few months later the gallant husband was called by the Grim Reaper, leaving the gentle wife to spend her remaining years with their daughter, Miss Betsy Blackman, the home which for so long had sheltered their remarkable couple. Mrs. Blackman was a devoted wife and mother, and her life was a model of domestic excellence. She was a member of the Society of Colonial Dames of America, and an honorary regent of the Old South chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Blackman is survived by one son, Dana Blackman, and three daughters, Mrs. C. J. Edge, Mrs. W. L. Bullard, and Mrs. J. B. Blackman. On son, John Blackman, died two years ago. The grandchildren are Dexter Edge, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; David Edge, of Deland, Fla.; Owen D. Edge, C. J. Edge and Spencer Edge, Columbus, Mrs. William Hart, Leighton W. McPherson, Miss Dana Bullard, Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., Dr. Francis Blackman, Dr. Ray Blackman, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Jack Ellis, Dana Blackman Jr., Mrs. Archie Drake, of Macon, and 22 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will take place Friday at 4:30 p. m. from the residence with Dr. Robert Boyd, of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. The pallbearers will be the following grandsons and grandsons-in-law: A. O. Blackman, Dr. Ray W. Blackman, Dana Blackman, Dr. Francis Blackman, Owen D. Edge, C. J. Edge, Spencer Edge, David Edge, Leighton McPherson, John T. Ellis, Archie Drake and Dexter Edge.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Q.—The Songame is tremendously interesting, and I am glad to have the list of songs and the composers given on the four-page circular. I have decided to get a copy of the book, "Songs We All Love." How long will you keep it on hand?—S. J. W., Atlanta.

A.—The publisher of "Songs We All Love," when he learned that Songame followers wanted copies of this interesting publication, arranged to supply The Constitution with a reasonable quantity of "Songs We All Love" will be available to readers throughout the contest. It includes all of the correct answers, and may be had for 50 cents a copy, or for 54 cents by mail. Songame players are under no obligation to buy this book, which is placed on sale to accommodate those who desire it.

Q.—Are some of the Songame pictures drawn so that they have a lot of misleading clues? Some of the answers aren't easy to get to—L. R. A., Athens, Ga.

A.—Each picture is drawn to represent one song title. No misleading clues are given. Some of the pictures may seem to fit more than one song title, but actually the correct answer is always the most appropriate one.

Q.—Should the answers be lettered or written in either hand?—W. M. H., Atlanta.

A.—The answers may be written in either hand.

Beloved Professor

Emertitus, With Faculty 52 Years, Dies at 71.

OXFORD, Ga., Aug. 18.—Harry Harlan Stone, professor-emertitus of Emory University and one of the most distinguished educators in the history of Georgia, died at his home here early this morning as the result of a heart attack. He had been associated with the faculty of Emory University and its predecessor, old Emory University Academy, for 52 years and was known and admired by thousands whom he had taught.

Scion of a prominent Georgia family, Professor Stone was born in Oxford on November 18, 1861. He was the son of George W. W. and Susan Capers Stone. He entered the academic department of old Emory College in 1873 and became a charter member of the class of 1880. Among his classmates were Judge Warner Hill, George John Chandler and Dr. L. T. Evans. Clark Howell Sr., editor of The Atlanta Constitution, was a fraternity mate of Professor Stone. A year after leaving his alma mater, Professor Stone was made a member of the faculty of Emory College as adjunct professor of mathematics. He was assistant professor of applied mathematics in 1912, and professor-emertitus in 1918.

Tribute to Alumnus.

In 1927, the Emory Alumnus, paying tribute to the long record of Professor Stone, stated:

"Professor Stone has been connected with Emory longer than any other faculty member. He has done more than any other person, regardless of years of service, in building up and conserving the sentiments and traditions of the school, the historic old Oxford."

To the forefront and painstaking care of Professor Stone is indebted for the collection and preservation of its treasured photographs of the old Oxford graduates, so many of whom have since won fame for themselves and for their alma mater.

Including the past half a century of continuous devoted service to Emory, Professor Stone served as librarian for 30 years; custodian of grounds and buildings for 33 years; secretary of the board of trustees of Emory College for 10 years; secretary of Alumni Association of Emory College for 25 years; treasurer of the board of trustees of the new university—a period of 29 years; as well as bursar and registrar for many years.

It was Professor Stone who designed the emblem of Alpha Epsilon Upsilon honor society and the great seal of the university, having been instantly approved by Bishop Warren A. Candler, who ordered the seal struck in accordance with Professor Stone's design.

Other Activities.

In addition to his 52 years of active service with Emory, Professor Stone found time to devote to local educational development, having been president of the Newton county board of education since 1930, receiving commissions from each governor of Georgia since 1890. He was also president of the Newton county board of education since 1930, receiving commissions from each governor of Georgia since 1890. During this period a large number of rural schools have been consolidated in Newton county and in the entire state, and the first system in the south embracing transportation of scholars to a central school was established under his leadership. He was also the first successfully operated system of rural school traveling libraries.

In 1885 Professor Stone married Miss Susan Stone, daughter of Dr. M. Bonnell, who for many years was president of Wesleyan College. Six children were born of this union, Margaret Judith, Bonnell Harold, George William, William Morton, Emma Lise and Susanne Elizabeth Stone.

For more than 50 years Professor Stone had been continuously a steward and member of the board of trustees of the Oxford church, as well as district steward, superintendent of the Sunday school, and a member of the North Georgia conference.

Early Roads Advocate.

He was the author of numerous magazine and newspaper articles especially in the interest of a system of good highways, even at a time long before the advent of the automobile and when but little interest was being manifested in a system of highways. Many of his writings pointed to the benefits to be derived by schools from improved highways, and other articles in the interest of a system of traveling libraries in rural sections, transportation of pupils to and from schools, and consolidation of outlying district schools.

Professor Stone was a member of Phi Gamma Literary Society, and of the Epistol chapter, Kappa Alpha fraternity.

He is survived by his wife; two daughters, Miss Emma Lise and Miss Susanne Stone; two sons, Howard and Bonnell Stone; and a brother, George W. Stone.

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon at Oxford, with Bishop Warren A. Candler officiating, assisted by Rev. E. R. E. Long, Rev. Walter B. Branham and Rev. Nathan T. Thompson, of Oxford. It is expected that a large number of leading persons in the educational system of Georgia will attend.

MRS. BLACKMAN

PASSES AT HOME AT 101 YEARS OF AGE.

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Mary Ann Blackman, "the grand old lady of Columbus," died Thursday night at her home, 14 Fourth avenue, having lived 101 years and been a partner in one of the most remarkable marriages ever recorded. Her husband, Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., died on April 18, 1930, just six weeks before he would have reached his hundredth birthday.

Mrs. Blackman was born April 28, 1831, on Dresser Hill, Charlton, Mass., the daughter of Dexter and Ann Gordon Blackman. In 1851 she came south to visit her kinsmen, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Blackman, and in November of the same year became the bride of Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., and thus began a married life which knew comradeship and understanding of the rarest sort for 79 years.

Coming from a line of distinguished Americans, Mrs. Blackman's forefathers were worthy of their rich heritage, as throughout the long span of years they exemplified those traits of gentleness, dignity, honor and courage.

Living through the troublous pioneer days when Columbus was a trading post, she reared a family that existed for a hundred years almost in its entirety. At the time of his death April 18, 1930, Mr. Blackman was 84 years old, leaving behind him 12 children, 14 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren. Mrs. Blackman is survived by one son, Dana Blackman, and three daughters, Mrs. C. J. Edge, Mrs. W. L. Bullard, and Mrs. J. B. Blackman. On son, John Blackman, died two years ago. The grandchildren are Dexter Edge, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; David Edge, of Deland, Fla.; Owen D. Edge, C. J. Edge and Spencer Edge, Columbus, Mrs. William Hart, Leighton W. McPherson, Miss Dana Bullard, Alfred Owen Blackman Jr., Dr. Francis Blackman, Dr. Ray Blackman, of Jacksonville, Fla.; Mrs. Jack Ellis, Dana Blackman Jr., Mrs. Archie Drake, of Macon, and 22 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will take place Friday at 4:30
